

Building an Essay

You are an architect when you write an essay. All the big and little parts must be combined so they work together in just the right way.

Successfully building an essay requires planning and patience. In high-stakes testing, building an essay under timed conditions requires the ability to work under more pressure.

Few succeed at high levels, so when you do, you are a cut above the rest.

