

The Future of History?

As the universe expands, all galaxies, stars, and systems will eventually be so far away, they'll be undetectable by any instrument of our science.

They will have disappeared from our sight and maybe from our history.

Will future generations of humans even know that anything outside our Milky Way galaxy ever existed?