

HUMILITY

Humility is common in those who lack confidence. False humility is even more common than arrogance. However, it's rare to meet someone who is personally strong, even accomplished, but still sincerely believes they are no more capable than other people and who habitually communicates this belief both verbally and nonverbally.