

Moment of Understanding

The instant you finally understand something, what is the corresponding physical event in your brain like? Is it an irreversible and, in some way, special event?