

Performing in a musical ensemble, either vocally or instrumentally, is a good example of someone contributing to something greater than themselves.