

Symmetry of Life?

CONSIDER THIS SPECULATION:

The more negative a circumstance is, the greater is the possibility for a positive outcome. Using a metaphor from mathematics, it's like the negative of a circumstance is balanced by its positive potential because they are the same distance from zero on the number line; i.e. they have identical absolute values. Remain thankful and humble, though, when things are going really well for you. Symmetry implies that the reverse is true too.

What do you think?