

THOUGHT, ACTION, WILL

It's good to think before you do something, especially if the stakes are higher. But you eventually have to stop thinking and act. What translates thought into action is will.

When you consider that our lives are a succession of thinking and doing moments, strength of will starts to seem pretty important.