

A Time Thought

If a machine capable of traveling back in time were possible, would it not have already been invented by a future hi-tech civilization on Earth? Further, would humans from this civilization not have traveled back to our time and be living among us now? If this were so, how likely is it they would reveal themselves or their technology to us?

clker.com